John,

I'm a little surprised at the poor quality of this report - much repetition, poor organization, and even many typographical errors.

Even more surprising, though, is the manner in which they use a single interviewees opinions to imply widespread support for the viewpoint. For example, in the summary I read that several participants considered the "transfer of authority" exercise a farce. In the body of the report we learn that that was one man's opinion and that opinion was influenced by his lack of active participation.

A lot of weight was given to [redacted] opinions, it seems, although he indicts his own management ability by conceding he couldn't get his people to do anything. Apparently he was waiting for the DCI to spell everything out.

The most damaging assertion, in my opinion, is that NCPO and PAO were the causes of wasted time and resources by the program managers and others. There's no doubt that many agencies object to the manhours they have to spend to support NCPO studies and to educate PAO analysts. The NCPO studies should no longer be a problem, but we should continue to be sensitive to PAO's efforts to work Program Managers' problems.

Attached is your copy of the HAC S&I staff study of the IC Staff. Not surprisingly they take fairly direct aim at PAO & NCPO. The bottom line is: Use these bullets elsewhere.

No one really comes off well in this.

I suggest you read it & then let's get together to discuss what a next step might be.

Al & Sharon:

Attached is the infamous HAC S&I Study on "Role and Functions of the Intelligence Community Staff." It has been retained in O-D/ICS files since July 1981. I think it is of a sufficient age and status that it no longer needs to be retained within the front office. Please incorporate it into your files.

Thanks,

Much here to be factored into our discussions leading to decisions on future organization and functions of the IC Staff & Committee. To the HPSCI that we would complete the restructuring/realignment by the end of August.
